1. There is attached a copy of memorandum of 2 May 1952 from [] requesting military leave "for purposes of completing mandatory active duty requirements, commencing on or about 15 June 1952 for 15 days".

2. Agency regulation [] provides for military leave for training purposes only, not to exceed 15 calendar days in any one calendar year. The words "training purposes only" are used as distinguished from "active duty". Consequently military leave not to exceed 15 days in any one calendar year may be granted only for training purposes. Employees may, however, use all the annual leave to their credit concurrent with active duty.
